Health Centre opens COVID-19 Assessment Clinic

Dear Chippewas of Kettle and Stony Point First Nation members,

We are pleased to announce the opening of a First Nation-led COVID-19 testing facility at the Kettle and Stony Point Health Centre. This clinic aligns with the community guideline to avoid unnecessary travel. Community members should be able to access these important tests without having to leave the First Nation.

Registered nurses with Kettle and Stony Point First Nation will be administering the tests by appointment only during clinic hours (below) three days a week. There are no walk-ins.

This clinic is operating through a strong partnership our First Nation has developed with officials at Bluewater Health and Lambton Public Health, who have offered support in the form of training and personal protective equipment (PPE). After tests are conducted at the Health Centre, they will be sent to London Health Sciences Centre, for processing. Positive test results can take up to 5 days.

Our goal is to provide testing to as many community members as required.

Who should get tested for COVID-19?

Most people with COVID-19 are experiencing these symptoms:

- Fever
